Minimum Qualifications & Description of Medical Professionals (in alphabetical order):

Certified Dental Assistant: Certified Dental Assistants help dentists with clinical, laboratory and administrative tasks. Certified Dental Assistants always work under the direction and supervision of a dentist. They often work in dentists' office but can be hired by hospitals, clinics or dental schools. Certified Dental Assistants set up examination rooms, tools and supplies and assist dentists during procedures, like filling cavities or performing root canals. Certified Dental Assistants also take x-rays and molds and advise patients about dental care and hygiene. The administrative tasks performed by Certified Dental Assistants include appointment setting, billing and record keeping Experience: 1 year of experience in past 24 months.

Education: High School Diploma.

Certification/License: Licensed Dental Assistant/Technician through a training program of the State of Ohio.

Dental Hygienist: Dental hygienists are licensed professionals who help dentists provide treatment and care of the mouth, teeth, and gums. State laws limit the duties that hygienists may perform. Hygienists examine patients' teeth and gums. They remove stains and tartar, a hard, yellow deposit. They also perform root planing, a procedure that smooths and cleans the root of the tooth. In addition, dental hygienists take and develop dental X-rays to help diagnose problems and apply fluorides and sealants to help prevent cavities. Hygienists teach patients how to prevent dental problems, emphasizing the importance of good nutrition, proper brushing, and regular dental checkups.

Health Information Technician: The health information technician is responsible for organizing comprehensively and accurately the medical record of each patient. They ensure that all the necessary forms are present, properly identified, signed and filed. Health information technicians are able to translate complex data into understandable, interesting and simplified information for the general public. They take the medical records produced by the health care provider and translate them into a code that identifies each diagnoses and procedure utilized in treating the patient. They use special computer programs to determine insurance reimbursements, and tabulate and analyze data. They also produce reports utilized to improve patient care, control cost and to be used with survey and research studies. Health information technicians work under the supervision of the health information administrator.
